Marc Singer concentrates his practice in real estate litigation and counseling, fiduciary litigation, and commercial and business litigation. He has handled numerous matters in both the state and federal trial and appellate courts, as well as before arbitrators and mediators.

Marc has successfully represented and counseled real estate brokers and agents, lawyers, accountants and other professionals in large-exposure professional liability actions involving complex liability, damages and apportionment issues. He has been involved with the real estate brokerage industry since the 1980's and has handled claims arising out of allegations of fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, negligence, breach of contract and failure to disclose, as well as ethics grievances and complaints before regulatory agencies and governing boards or associations. He also represents trusts, estates, fiduciaries and beneficiaries in various litigation matters involving will contests, undue influence claims, life insurance disputes and elective share disputes.

Additionally, Marc has represented finance companies and domestic partnerships involved in contract disputes. He also has been involved in the prosecution of fraud and related misappropriation claims on behalf of a premium finance company concerning one of the largest insurance fraud scams in U.S. history.

Marc has significant experience in alternative dispute resolution and has written and spoken on a variety of litigation issues, including civil motion practice, professional liability issues and commercial real estate disputes. Marc also has held a New Jersey real estate broker's license and has litigated and lectured on numerous issues affecting the real estate brokerage industry.

Marc is a member of the Firm's Management Committee.
